

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is an extremely underhanded way to try to influence a crucial presidential election that hangs in the balance using the public airwaves free of charge. I find it unconscionable and dangerous that regular television programming time can be pre-empted and then used to influence voter opinion in such a flagrant way without legal ramifications.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest.

I urge the FCC to take a stand against this.
